ANGEL OF JOBLESS LIFTS VEIL

SEEKS BEAN CITY'S CONSCIENCE

Boston, Sept. 1.—Urbain J. Ledoux, Boston's "Mr. Zero," the "angel" of the jobless, cleared up today all the seeming mystery about himself and his rather startling undertaking of feeding Boston's unemployed free of charge. He submitted letters of commendation from such men as Edward A. Filene, Edwin A. Mead and David Starr Jordan among others.

"I have brought a foundling to the doorstep of Boston. What are you going to do about it?" Thus does Ledoux explain his coming to Boston. "In New York last winter," he says, "I created a bread line in order to engineer it out of existence. I secured employment, provided food and lodging for the men until they received their first money and became self-supporting. Before I gathered the jobless together they had been walking the streets, scattered, homeless, without friends or money and with no place to find them.

"I got them in one place and forced the city to realize their existence and their need by the fact of collecting them where the bread line could be seen and the need of the men could be made visible.

"Last week I came to Boston. I investigated conditions for four days. I found men who had not eaten for a week, or for two or three days. They were on the verge of starvation and suffering. Then, as is my habit, I did the thing that was to be done. I fed them and after that I secured a house which they could call their own, where they could gather and which would be evident to the community.

"Human engineering is my specialty. There is more distress in New York than in Boston as a result of the unemployment, but the public in New York is more awakened to the situation. There is need to awaken the public here to the conditions. I want to fathom the depths of Boston hearts. I want to find the Boston conscience. I am testing it. I am not discouraged. Every second man I meet here acknowledges that Boston is asleep to the unemployment conditions, so there is hope.

"I will feed the unemployed in Boston, but I shall not undertake to provide furniture for our 'church of the unemployed.' I expect the 'big brothers' to do that. A good Samaritan who would not give me his name provided us with window shades today. In New York it was not the wealthy persons, but those of the middle class who gave the furnishings.

"I have never accepted a penny in my labors for the unemployed, nor do I handle any funds. Let some one arise and assume the duty and let the funds go through any reliable person or organization here. Am I wealthy? Yes, I'm richer than Rockefeller or Carnegie; I've a heart that beats for my fellowmen, and in the hearts of my fellowmen there is a place for me. Wealthy? When I started my first bread line I had $3.10 in my pocket and that bread line has fed 50,000."

STATE NEWS

Danville.—An unusual fatality took place here yesterday when Jennie Baldwin, a negress, 45 years of age, was drowned in a cesspool on her premises. The woman was subject to fits of epilepsy and was constantly watched by her relatives.

Petersburg.—The board of directors of the local Chamber of Commerce will recommend to the City Council that it repeal two sections of the city code which prohibits the shifting of freight in railroad yards between the hours of 10 p. m. and 6 a. m. The ordinances were passed in 1906, but have never been enforced.

Lynchburg.—There are reasons here for the belief that the government has its eyes on Edgewood farm, located just outside the city, for a landing field for planes from Langley field. The field has for some time been used by a local air service corporation and, it is claimed, it is an ideal place for such uses.

Lynchburg.—The tobacco crop in this section is being cut, the cutting being in full blast now and reports are that a smaller though much better crop will be cured this year than was the case last year. No primings will be saved this year as there is no market for them. The local warehouses reopen Thursday but no tobacco is expected on the breaks for at least a month yet, as it is yet to be cured.

Danville.—H. P. Pridemore, who was shot by Henry Edwards when the latter surprised him in his home, died from cerebral hemorrhage this morning. He did not regain consciousness and did not make a dying declaration. Edwards in jail, took the news calmly. His preliminary hearing will be on Friday morning. The police have found an eye witness to the shooting, Arch Pugh, who states he was 25 feet from Edwards when he was shot. He heard Edwards accuse Pridemore of ruining his home, he said.

Norfolk.—Walter D. Nye, who voted in the primary of August 2 and who has since announced his candidacy for clerk of the courts against James V. Trehy, who was nominated in the primary, may be read out of the Democratic party, in Norfolk and in Virginia. The city Democratic committee, at a meeting held Monday, denounced Nye as a bolter. All Democrats were urged to vote for their party nominees from the gubernatorial candidate down to the lowest office on the ticket.

Norfolk.—Traffic representatives of commercial organizations and big industries from several Virginia cities are conferring at the Chamber of Commerce today on certain rate readjustments affecting Virginia cities. The adjustments being considered are between Eastern cities and Virginia cities, between Eastern cities and the Carolinas, and between Virginia cities and the Southeast. The purpose of the conference is to secure coordination of effort among Virginia commercial traffic men, in order that the State's interests may be taken care of in the best manner possible.

Petersburg.—Injured last night when a stream from a high-powered hose struck him in the face while fighting a fire in a Sycamore street shoe store that for a time threatened an entire block of the business section. Captain Herbert Hardy, of the Halifax street fire company, today was resting well at his home. Physicians have expressed hope that they may be able to save the sight of his eyes, although both are badly injured. Damage to the shoe store is about $20,000, fully covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is undetermined, but it started in a small room on the ground floor of the three-story building.

Ashland.—Randolph-Macon college has secured Dr. Joseph Boyd Haley as professor of Greek for the coming session. He will arrive in a few days from Elberton, Ga., to begin his work here. Dr. Haley is an A. B. of Emory university, 1916; fellow in Greek and Latin, Emory university, 1916-17, and M. A., 1917; university fellow in Greek, University of Wisconsin, 1917-18, and M. A., 1918; appointed Charles Kendall Adams fellow in Greek, University of Wisconsin, for 1918-19, but resigned to enter army; Charles Kendall Adams fellow in Greek, University of Wisconsin, 1919-21, and Ph. D., 1921; taught in Emory University summer school, 1917; lecturer in the classics, University of Wisconsin, summer, 1921; member of the Classical Association of the Middle West and South.

Winchester.—A crowd of approximately 8,000 people from many sections of Virginia, West Virginia and other states swarmed into the village of Gore and its environs yesterday for the annual picnic of Gore Camp, Modern Woodmen of America. The managers counted on a larger attendance, but the size of the crowd amazed them, and fleets of motor trucks were sent here at top speed for additional foodstuffs, on which the camp made a good profit. The main attractions were concerts by McIlwee's Concert Band, Keyser, W. Va., tropshooting, in which R. T. Jones, of Winchester, led, and baseball games.

CALL FOR MORE TROOPS

Cabinet Acts To Put End To Factional Clashes In Belfast.

SEVEN MORE KILLED

Sixteen Persons Have Lost Lives Since Trouble Started—Scores Are Wounded.

Belfast, Sept. 1.—The Ulster Cabinet met yesterday to consider the serious conditions prevailing here. Military officials and police authorities joined in the discussions. Arrangements were made to draft additional troops for the protection of the city and other steps were taken to restore and maintain order.

Gunmen were again active yesterday evening in the Old Lodge district They opened a heavy fire in the direction of Shankhill road, a thickly populated Protestant quarter. A young man was killed nad four were seriously wounedd in this fighting. workmen were attacked yesterday evening on the way home in West Belfast. The police were obliged to fire on the attacking forces which were dispersed.

As a result of today's clashes the death list was augmented by 7, while 30 persons were injured, many of them seriously.

Today's casualties bring the total death roll for th e three days of noting to 15. There probably have been 100 persons more or less seriously injured of whom numbers were noncombatant, who lucklessly had ventured into the streets which were being swept by rifle and revolver fire

With some quiet intervals, resulting from the police putting snipers to flight shooting persisted at various sections of the city from early morning until late this evening. Some times it became so dangerous as to necessitate the suspension of the tramway service. Many workers were unable to reach their places of employment and returned to their homes, while shopkeepers did not dare to open their stores. In some of the disturbed districts manufactories were compelled to close for the day, while owing to the failure to open the shops, the streets presented a deserted appearance.

The present trouble had its origin in the Warren and side streets lying between West street and North Queen streets. The residents of these street sand Old Lodge road, another storm center, are of mixed political views and constant bickering is the result. This boiled up Monday. A fortunate circumstance is that Falls road, the stronghold of the Nationalists and Sinn Feiners and Sandy Row, Shankhill and Bally maccarett, where Orange is predominates are stanidng aloof.

London, Sept. 1.—The Belfast correspondent for the Westminster Gazette in describing last night's riots there says:

"It may be stated that with the approach of dusk Royal avenue and other parts of the center of the city wer the scene of disgraceful attacks on Catholic pedestrians who were seen moving along. During the night any Catholic who chanced to be passing down Royal avenue was pounced upon and savagely maltreated.

"In some cases men were struck down and kicked, and in one case a man was actually danced upon by bands of Orange hooligans who appeared to have a monopoly in the center of the city. Encouraged by their success, the mobs fired up Castle street upon assembled passengers waiting for tram cars."

The correspondent describes how "spotting" of Catholic pedestrians proceeded with the firing by the mobs in the strets. Unionist snipers also were busy he said, in the York street area, where many pedestrians were endangered and five wounded. The correspondent adds:

"As darkness fell a crowd of Unionists congregated in Denmark street and at 10 o'clock made a desperate attack on Nationalists residents of Stanhope street and adjacent streets Teh result was a desperate conflict. The Nationalists defendd themselves with vigor, and their fire from rifle and revolvers could be heard a long distance. Police armored cars were dispatched to the scene but it was 11 o'clock before peace was rstored"

FIRST SEAPLANE "RAID CARRIED OUT IN CHILE

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 1.—A seaplane "raid," the first in Chile, was made yesterday from Valparaiso to Coquimbo, 200 miles away, with three naval "short" seaplanes. One arrived at Coquimbo in three hours. The two others extended the raid 70 miles north of Coquimbo, where their gas became exhausted. They floated until supplied with fuel this morning.

An English instructor, Col. Travers, commanded the seaplanes.

CANTON TONIGHT

Plans for its autumn and winter work will be mapped out tonight at a meeting of Alexandria Canton Odd Fellows. This organization practically discontinued its work during the summer months and it is expected that there will be a large attendance at the meeting tonight.

MOVIES FOR THE SCHOOLS

Citizens To Purchase Motion Picture Projector

Tomorrow Friday Night.

There will be an exhibition of moving pictures held at the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of determining the desirability of acquiring a motion picture projector for the High School. Several of the prominent men and women of Alexandria are interested in the matter and the public is cordially invited to attend.

The acquisition of a motion picture projector will enable the pupils of the public schools to have many of the topics of their daily lessons visualized.

There are hundreds of reels of excellent material available from different departments of the Government; the Department of Agriculture has something like a hundred subjects pertaining to agriculture, horticulture, animal industry, and so on; the Bureau of Mines of the Interior Department has twenty-five to forty subjects on different phases of their work; the Public Health Service (Treasury Department) has a dozen or more subjects on health and sanitation—how to keep well—; the reclamation Service of the Interior Department has about fifty subjects pertaining to irrigation, drainage, and so on; the Bureau of Education (Interior Department) has a large number on various educational subjects, and there are many more. From the foregoing departments or divisions could be obtained enough subjects to have weekly programs for from nine to twelve months. The National Park Service has some wonderful scenic reels.

In addition to the above there are many other educational reels obtainable for a nominal sum. Parents and children would be equally interested in these exhibitions.

As stated, everyone is invited to attend, children and parents, and the exhibition promises to be highly entertaining. The place is the Chamber of Commerce auditorium and the hour, 8 o'clock.

May Yet Save Discount.

Few More Days Grace Granted By Tax Collector

The time for payment of the city taxes for 1921 to tax collector Gorman and which he is authorized to allow a discount of 5 per cent on bills paid before September 2nd expires today Owing to delays in receiving the bills for collection Mr. Gorman was not able to notify many persons. In addition to this his time has been limited by persons paying capitation taxes for school purposes.

In order that many persons who could not be attended to when coming to his office a reasonable time will be allowed such persons by the collector to save the discount, so we are informed by Mr. Gorman.

POLICE COURT.

Cases disposed of today in the police court, Mayor Duncan presiding follow: A man arrested by Policeman Durrer for violating the speed law, acquitted; a man arrested by Policeman Talbot for violating the traffic law forfeited $5 collateral; a man arrested by Policeman Magner for failing to have city automobile license, had his case continued.

EXPECT PRE-WAR PRICES FOR OYSTERS THIS YEAR

Bivalve, N. J. Sept. 1.—The aristocratic oyster will be selling at pre war prices when the season for the festive bivalve opens tomorrow.

Stews, frys raws and oysters in all other styles should be cheaper at the restaurants, cafes and the oyster houses this season. Shippers announce that there will be a cut in the wholesale price while the cost of milk, crackers, butter and labor have also taken a tumble. Consequently the oyster epicure may expect a big creamy stew with lots of oysters and a big bowl of crackers on the side, for 25 or 30 cents.

As a result of the warmer weather, the demand for oysters at the very opening of the season is not expected to be as large as was figured when the weather was cool. The oyster trade will not be brisk until snappy weather comes.

Only a part of the big fleet of 300 boats will start dredging tomorrow in the Maurice River cove. The crews are all ready to start off for the beds and some of the boats left their docks yesterday evening.

An order for 1,250,000 pounds for similar motors was received a few weeks ago by the same firm from the Japanese Government.

The Sulzer firm makes a specialty of Diesel and large motors for submarines.

2ND BAPTIST WINS CONTEST

Miss Margaret Duncan To Be "First Lady" At Picnic.

AFFAIR LABOR DAY

Picnic On Grounds of George Mason High School—Standing of Schools At Close.

Miss Margaret Duncan, of the Second Baptist Sunday school, is to be the "first lady" of the Sunday school picnic to be held by the Alexandria Sunday schools at the George Mason high school Labor Day. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. B. Duncan of Patrick and Queen streets. Her position of honor comes to her by many interesting routes. First by virtue of the fact that the Second Baptist Sunday school has, for the second time, won the Alexandria Sunday school attendance campaign honors.

This Sunday school is a reputation for aggressiveness most envious among the schools of the city. It is faultlessly organized and every member believes it to be his or her personal responsibility to "put through" any undertaking that the church or school attempts. This personal devotion will win any where and the Second Baptist Sunday school is naming the "first lady" again as a result of it.

George K. Bender, superintendent of the Sunday school, asked that the first lady be selected by the school as a result of service and Miss Duncan easily won by a splendid margin. She is a member of Mrs. J. A. Hulfish's class and has brought in more new members than any other student of the school. The records of the school reveal the fact that she is practically perfect in her attendance. She is said to be a most charming little lady and is arranging to have a retinue of maids and train bearers to add to the effectiveness of the occasion.

The first lady will be decorated immediately after the big picnic dinner by Dr. E. V. Register, president of the Alexandria Pastors' association. Dr. Register has the happy faculty of being able to do "all things well," which will insure an interesting ceremony. The program of the picnic will follow and will be in the nature of a review in honor of the first lady who will be the guest of the occasion.

The program has not been announced yet, but it is known that baseball will be one of the features for the older folks, while an etxensive program is being arranged for the little ones. The formal program will include the best talent in the city and will be worth going many miles to enjoy, the entertainment committee announces.

The tennis court has been placed at the disposal of the picnickers, who are asked to use tennis shoes when playing. The court is in good shape and the net will be up. Balls and rackets must be furnished by the players. Mr. Wallace, of the Y. M. C. A., has loaned some of his camp equipment consisting of hammocks and swings which will doubtless make glad the hearts of the little ones.

The final standing of the Sunday schools participating in the attendance campaign is as follows:

	Attendance	AP.C.
Second Baptist	201	129
St. Paul's	190	116
First Baptist	338	94
M. E., South	296	92
Trinity M. E.	95	85
Second Presbyterian	123	84

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

Washington, Sept. 1.—The Maryland delegation in Congress is going to make a determined fight when that body reassembles after the recess to prevent the abandonment of Indian Head as a proving ground for small arms for the Navy.

So determined are they that the grounds shall not be transferred to Dahlgren on the Virginia side of the Potomac River that it was announced today that Representative Sydney E. Mudd, the Maryland member on the Naval Affairs Committee will introduce a resolution to stop any further appropriations for the Dahlgren proving grounds. In the meantime, however, the Navy Department is paying no attention to the proteats of the Maryland delegation but is going ahead with its plans to move from Indian Head all proving activities, leaving at the Maryland plant only the equipment for the manufacture of smokeless powder. Dahlgren seems certain to be the winner in the contest now raging.

The Gazette correspondent was informed at the State Department today that recognition of Mexico by the government of the United States is drawing to a point of fulfillment. If the reports from Mexico to the effect that the Supreme Court of that country has decided to recognize the validity of American claims to oil fields and other industries in the Republic to the South of us are correct, the great stumbling block in the way of recognition of Mexico is pushed aside.

The disposition over the Island of Yap question seems at hand. Recent exchanges between this government and Japan, coupled with informal conversations between Secretary of State Hughes and Baron Shidehara, Japanese Ambassador, have resulted in the formation of a tentative agreement which will no doubt result in the internationalization of this much-disputed but little known island of the South Pacific Ocean. What the United States has been contending for and which the government of Japan failed to recognize has been the right of this country to a cable landing on the Island of Yap. Japan claimed she was the sole possessor of this territory resulting from the World War. The United States thought otherwise and now it appears that our demands, couched in diplomatic language, are to be met by the Mikado's government.

President Harding has before him for decision the question as to what shall be done with the $400,000,000 worth of German property seized by the United States and now in possession of Col. Thomas W. Miller, Alien Property Custodian. Col. Miller has recommended that no part or parcel of this property be returned to the original owners until after complete satisfaction has been made by Germany and Austria to Americans who suffered through loss of life and property as the result of German activities prior to the declaration of war between the United States and the Kaiser. Such claims include those arising out of the sinking of the Lusitania by German submarines, which resulted in the loss of life of many Americans.

Official Washington awaits with deep interest the effect of President Harding's proclamation calling all rioters in the West Virginia coal fields back to their homes and telling them they must obey law and order or otherwise the federal government will intervene. These rioters were given until noon today to comply with the terms of the proclamation. Up to one o'clock this afternoon, the Gazette correspondent was informed that martial law had not been declared and there were evidences that the rioters were submitting to the terms of President Harding's proclamation.

It's all a lie. That is the report circulated that "Uncle Joe" Cannon will not become a candidate for re-election. "Uncle Joe" who is in his 86th year is just about as active as a member of Congress thirty years his junior. Irrespective of politics, and "Joe" Cannon is a Southerner by birth, North Carolina laying claim to him, all hope that he will be spared many more years of life in the political world.

FINED $100

Man Who Made Trouble at Dance Given Hearing

A colored man registered on the police blotter as William Riley, of Washington, who was alleged to have been implicated in the disorder at Odd Fellows' Hall colored, last Monday night during the progress of a dance, was arraigned in the police court today and fined $100 by Mayor Duncan.

On the night in question three pistol shots were fired causing a stampede among the crowd in the hall. Testimony was introduced to the effect that when the accused was refused admittance to the hall he made a threat that he would "bring in his gang." This was followed by the appearance of several Washington colored men and a fight followed during which the pistol was discharged.

On Tuesday morning three other colored men who were at the hall from Washington, were fined $100 each.

TODAY'S THOUGHT Whoso neglects learning in his youth, loses the past and is dead for the future.

SEND IN THE NAMES

We publish in today's columns elsewhere a letter written by Hon. Arthur Kyle Davis, chairman of the Virginia War History Commission, to our fellow-townswoman, Miss Helen Norris Cummings, relative to assistance that may be rendered all ex-service men. We only had permission from Miss Cummings to publish extracts from the letter, but the cause is so worthy that we print the entire communication as being a much more effective way of arousing interest. We hope that those of our readers that know of any ex-soldier having claims on the government, will promptly forward his name and address as directed by Mr. Davis, in his letter to Miss Cummings.

VIRGINIA'S VOTERS

We wrote a few days ago, in this column, concerning the apparent apathy of the voters of Virginia. Since then, through the courtesy of the Va. Association for the Common Good, we have received a fresh tabulation of the votes of the principal southern states. We find that the figures of the three Southern states that border Virginia are interesting, and should be instructive. Kentucky has a population of 2,416,013, and her vote for president in 1920 was 908,977. North Carolina has a population of 2,556,486, and her vote was 538,294. Tennessee has a population of 2,337,459, and her vote was 426,387. Virginia, with a population of 2,306,361, cast only 229,128 votes.

In other words our three Southern neighbors, with populations only ten or eleven per cent greater, cast votes from one hundred to three hundred per cent greater than the Old Dominion. The conditions as to the negro vote and the Republican vote do not vary greatly in all four states. Indeed, the advantage may be said to lie with Virginia. We must look to some other cause for this enormous discrepancy.

The situation is in reality, appalling. There should be some effort on the part of the proper agencies to stir up civic self-consciousness. The Chamber of Commerce and the Kiwanis Club, either or both, might invite distinguished speakers from time to time, to talk on topics kindred to the duties and obligations of citizenship. Superintendent Sweeney might arrange for lectures to the pupils on Friday or Saturday nights and invite the public. We have the agencies. What we lack is the will. That can and should be cultivated.

THE MONTH OF SEPTEMBER

For the Gazette.

September takes its name from the Latin, septem—seven—it being the seventh month in the old Roman year.

When the Roman calendar was reformed into what is now known as the Julian year or calendar, September retained its name and the same number of days, but became the ninth month in the year.

In Charlemagne's calendar September was called the "harvest month" and it corresponds, partly to the Fructidor and partly to the Vendemiaire of the first French republic.

The Anglo-Saxons called the month of September Gertsmonath or barley month, that crop usually being harvested at that period.

In Switzerland the month of September is still called Herbstmonat, harvest month.

Labor day, observed on the first Monday in the month, is September's only holiday.

California on the 9th, 1850, is the only state that entered the Union in September.

The chrysolite is the September birthstone.

Two of the three martyred presidents died in the month of September, Garfield on the 19th, 1881, and McKinley on the 4th, 1921. Two presidents, Zachary Taylor, on the 24th, 1784, and William H. Taft, on the 15th 1857, were born in September.

THE SPIRIT OF CITIZENSHIP

In telling of the work accomplished by the pupils of his school who had participated in the work of the Junior Aemrican Red Cross, the Principal said, "We believe that the Juniors have absorbed more of the spirit of American citizenship and social service by this practical work for others than could ever be had from textbooks; and the joy of the Juniors in seeing children riding the kiddie kars and playing with the cloth elephants which they, the Juniors, had made, sent them back to their schoolroom with a pride in having helped and a determination to do more."

Great Virginia Women.

Who are the great women in the history of Virginia?

The Woman's National Foundation, adopting the suggestion of its executive head, Mrs. George Barnett, wife of Major General Barnett, U. S. Marine Corps, will incorporate in its new civic home in Washington, a Hall of Remembrance to the great women of America. In this Hall will be a column for each state in the Union, on which the women whose memory is considered worthy of perpetuation will have their names inscribed. As the Foundation is no arbitrary body, its aim being to serve rather than lead the feminine public, the choice of names suitable for commemoration will be left entirely to the people of each state.

Suggestions are now in order from the general public, to be passed on later by a local board when the Foundation appoints its state committees. It is considered desirable that there should be at least one name to represent each period from pioneer times to the present day. Living women, however, are excluded.

That the final selection will not be easy, any student of history can testify, for the field of famous women is very fertile. Who, for example, will represent Virginia? Pocahontas, saviour of John Smith; Mary Ball, mother of George Washington; Bethland F. Butler who, when fifteen years old, at the risk of her life warned Colonel Lee of a British attack—there are scores of women like these whose claims are indisputable.

The Foundation might choose a list arbitrarily and not be far wrong, but it desires to make this Hall of Remembrance a treasure house of the names which lead in the affections of the people. Consequently it is asking the public now to search both its heart and its knowledge of history. It is asking men as well as women, children as well as adults, to take a hand in making this Hall a thoroughly representative as well as beautiful memorial to the women who helped make America.

Suggestions, of course, should be substantiated by dates and records of achievement. They may be mailed direct to the Woman's National Foundation, Connecticut Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

The Friends We Can Make By the Wayside.

When Jim and I go out on the open road it pleases us not to know exactknowly where we are going, or when we shall get there. A destination is more troublesome than much luggage. If we have one folded up with our blankets, we find it necessary to forego many a pleasant chat by the wayside. Therefore, we usually leave our destination at home with our best clothes. They belong together!

Another joy of the road is not knowing what acquaintances we shall make, or how we shall make them. Getting acquainted with people is a dullard's adventure if you know about them ahead of time. But if you must learn the meaning of a human being from the poise of the head, the flash of the eye, the locking of the jaws, the behavior of the fingers, and from the individual life, communicable and yet inexplicable, which anmiates all of these, then a meeting is an inviting hazard. With letters of introduction we may meet Mr. and Mrs. John Brown Jones Smith. Without them we may find Socrates in a general store at the crossroads, Le Penseur on a lonely hill, and Thersites and St. Francis tramping side by side along a dusty road; we may even have the good fortune to hear Confucius talking to his disciples of "poetry, history and the upkeep of courtesy."

We enjoy the complex simplicities of pioneering in the hearts and minds of our kind. People who seem quite commonplace to themselves and to their neighbors shine for us with a light well known before there were candles, the ancient light of romance. For us they wear the plumes of knights, the caps of goblins, the haloes of saints, the garlands of delectable sinners, without ever knowing that they are clad in more than serge and gingham.

AIR MAIL SERVICE

The Air Mail Service will soon place in operation six remodeled airplanes of the DH type on the transcontinental air mail route between New York and San Francisco. These planes are army planes and by changing the wing and body capacity they will carry double the amount of mail now carried in the Air Mail Service by this type of plane. Eight hundred pounds of mail or 32,000 letters will be carried on the remodeled plane with the same amount of fuel and the same man power, one pilot.

The first of these remodeled planes was inspected at Bolling Field, Washington, this morning by Postmaster General Hays and his assistants, Work, Shaughnessy and Glover, with other postal officials.

The cost of remodeling these planes is about $3,000 per plane where as the cost of a new plane is about $15,000.

These planes will be compared on the most difficult part of the transcontinental route, which is over the Rockies, flying along with one of the planes now in use which carries only 100 pounds of mail. It is expected ultimately to use this type of remodeled plane on the entire route which will increase operating capacity 100 per cent

The remodeled plane is the latest type of ship for mail carrying. The experience of the Post Office Department with number of different types of plane has resulted in the conclusion that the best type of plane for use in the Air Mail Service is a single-motored plane carrying approximately 800 pounds of mail, or 32,000 letters, with a high speed of 115 miles per hour, landing speed of 50 miles per hour, and a cruising endurance of four hours.

The remodeled plane is en route from New York to San Francisco on its initial trip. It will be sent to the Minnesota State Fair held at the Twin Cities September 3-10, together with Airplane No. 12, which made the initial trip May 15, 1918, when the first air mail route was established between Washington and New York. This old plane has been in service for a period of three years and five months. It is a Curtiss model JN4H with a 150-H. P. Hispano-Suiza motor. It has a carrying capacity of 200 pounds of mail or approximately 8,000 letters with a cruising endurance of three and one-half hours. Its speed is 75 miles per hour. The records show that this old plane has flown over 40,000 miles.

During July of this year the Air Mail Service flew 13,150 miles with mail, carrying 224,000 letters, with a percentage of performance of 100 per cent New York to Chicago; 99 per cent Chicago to Rock Springs Wyo, and 98 per cent Rock Springs to San Francisco. The mileage for the transcontinental route is 2,630 miles from New York to San Francisco.

During the year ended June 30, 1921 1,770,658 miles were flown and 44,834,080 pieces of mail were carried, with a percentage of performance for the year of 85.96 per cent. There are 49 pilots, 380 mechanics and 86 planes used on the transcontinental route. There are air stations at New York, N. Y., Bellefonte, Pa., Cleveland, O., Bryan, O., Chicago, Ill., Iowa City, Ia., Omaha, Neb., North Platte, Neb., Cheyenne, Wyo., Rock Springs, Wyo., Salt Lake, Utah, Elko, Nev., Reno, Nev., and San Francisco, Cal. The Post Office Department is now negotiating at other points for joint Army and Post Office fields.

USE 40 BARRELS OF WINE TO EXTINGUISH BLAZE

Carlisle, Pa. Sept. 1.—Forty barrels of fine elderberry wine proved to be the only effective fire extinguisher early yesterday morning when a blaze on th farm of Gilbert Beetem destroyed a barn and outbuildings valued at $10,000. Water was poured on the burning buildings to no avail although a bucket brigade worked strenuously for six hours. The flames started to ignite a hand some lodge on the farm, but the water on the premises had run out. The thoughtful tenant remembered a large quantity of wine stored in the cellar. Soon the bucket brigade was transferring elderberry wine to the burning roof until the forty barrels were exhausted.

TWO MASKED MEN LOOT UNION PACIFIC TRAIN

Salt Lake City, Sept. 1.—The Los Angeles Limited, of the Union Pacific system, was held up by two masked and armed robbers shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon near Clearfield, nine miles south of Ogden.

All the male passengers were robbed.

The train was stopped by an automatic block signal. The two robbers boarded the train and while one gathered loot in the observation car the other proceeded to the other cars. The exact amount taken is not known. Nearing the outskirts of Salt Lake City the robbers pulled the signal cord and escaped in the northern part of the city.

One passenger in the observation car rather than hold up his hands jumped from the train. As he was fleeing one of the bandits shot at him.

Women and children on the train were not molested.

One passenger scribbled and threw from a window a notification that the train had been held up. A railroad employee picked up the note and telephoned to headquarters. A posse was immediately organized, but when it reached the incoming train the robbers had departed.

LETTER IS DELIVERED AFTET 12-YEAR DELAY

Sebring, Ohio, Sept. 1.—Mrs. W. F. Pool, of this place, and a former resident of Eldersville, Washington county, Pennsylvania, received a letter several days ago that had been mailed to her twelve years ago by her mother, Mrs. Catherine Magee, who is now dead. Mrs. Pool stated that her mother has been dead for two years and that the letter had been written ten years before.

The letter was dated February 7, 1909, and was mailed from Hanlin Station, near Eldersville, Pa., being addressed to Mrs. Pool, in Chester, W. Va., where she was then living. The letter passed through the Steubenville postoffice to Chester, where it was stamped again. The missive evidently fell into a crack in the mail boxes, out of sight, for a note written on it by the Chester postmaster says:

"Found this in moving the office to the new building."

WAR SUPPLIES—1813

It is credibly stated that Gen. Armstrong in a late conversation with a gentleman of this state, observed that "the Government would have saved money by contracting for the supply of the N. W. army, at the rate of $60 a barrel for flour, and $3 a bushel for corn." This secret furnishes the key to the mystery that has now cost the people 5 million dollars a month to carry on this MAD AND DESTRUCTIVE WAR!

The Methodists came to bat first in the game an sdecued a lead that St. Paul's could not overtop in this frame. Darkness intervened in the middle of the sixth inning and although the Methodists had run their total of runs up to 9 in the first half of the inning, the game automatically went back to the fifth inning and the score of 6 to 2.

St. Paul's were able to register but two hits during the game while the Methodists landed on Wood for a total of 10 hits in five innings.

Paramount Week September 4-10.

Motion picture patrons and theatres all over the country are looking forward to the week of September 4-10 the first week of the new season for in those seven days will be observed an event which is unique in motion picture affairs. This week for the last three years has been known as Paramount Week, when nearly all of the theatres of the country unite in showing Paramount pictures exclusively as a national demonstration for better motion pictures.

During Paramount Week the film theatres attempt to show to the public the advances that have been made in the art of the photoplay during the year, and as this year 10,000 theatres out of the country's 15,000 are expected to show Paramount pictures exclusively it will be seen that the week is really a most unusual event in the theatre.

Inaugurated three years ago by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, which produces and distributes Paramount pictures, this national demonstration was originally a sales drive pure and simple. In the summer of 1918, the New York exchange of the company set aside a week for a sales campaign the objective of which was to put Paramount Pictures into every picture house in Greater New York for seven consecutive days. This drive was so immensely successful that the officials of the company decided to adopt the same idea for the entire country, and accordingly the first week in September was chosen as National Paramount Week.

The plan succeeded beyond the fondest hopes of its creators, more than 3,000 theatres throughtout the country showing their patrons nothing but Paramount pictures for the entire week.

So successful was the demonstration, in fact, that officials of the company saw in Paramount Week something bigger than a sales campaign, and in subsejuent efforts have tried to make it sound the keynote for picture production during the coming season. Now it is generally accepted among picture theatre owners everywhere that "as Paramount Week goes, so goes the industry."

The next year saw the number of theatres participating in Paramount Week increased to more than 4,500, while last year the number jumped to more than 6,000. In fact, so astonishing was the success achieved last year that it excited the wonder and envy not only of other picture organizations, but also of the entire commercial world. So now we have our Silk Week, Cotton Week, Umbrella Week, etc.

YOUNG WIFE IS MISSING ON FIRST VISIT FROM HOME; FEAR FOUL PLAY

Pittsburgh Pa., Sept. 1.—That her first and only trip away from home has ended tragically for Mrs. Kathryn Barry, 17 years old, and pretty, of Reynoldsville, Pa., is the belief of her husband, who yesterday sought the aid of the Pittsburgh police in an effort to solve the mystery surrounding the disappearance of his wife, while supposedly en route from Kane to Reynoldsville August 23.

Mrs. Martha Kellichner, mother of the girl, is in a critical condition at her home near Reynoldsville, as a result of the failure of a search by relatives and police to throw any light on the disappearance.

Louis Barry, the husband, scouts the idea that his wife may have deserted him, and says she has undoubtedly met with foul play, probably after having lost her way by reason of her inexperience as a traveler.

Mrs. Barry, until August 14 had never been more than a few miles from home in all her life, she and her husband making their home with her parents after her marriage fourteen months ago.

TO HONOR ZR-2 DEAD IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY

London Sept. 1.—A memorial service for the victims of the ZR-2, which will be attended by representatives of the King, of the British Army and Navy Air forces and the American forces here, has been arranged by the Air Ministry for September 7. The service will be held in Westminster Abbey.

The Air Ministry, in making the announcement today, said it hoped it would be possible to throw open a portion of the Abbey to the general public. It added that naval honors would be accorded the American victims of the disaster when the caskets containing their bodies are placed on board the cruiser Dauntless at Plymouth, for the voyage to the United States.

America Not Alone In Her Pacific Problem.

Australia and New Zealand Equally Interested in Japan's Attitude

If America, since the end of the war has turned right about to face her problems in the Pacific, it is not less true that Australia and New Zealand have also, during the last year or so, withdrawn their interest from the affairs of Europe, and tend now to concentrate it upon the problems of their own Pacific Ocean.

Since 1916, at any rate, it was a foregone conclusion how the late German territories in the Pacific would be apportioned amongst the Allies; yet neither Australia nor New Zealand could feel secure in going ahead and putting into force the policies they intended eventually to adopt in regard to their administration. That has now been done. New Zealand brought in civil administration in western Samoa on May 1, and the Commonwealth Parliament of Australia is now debating the act authorizing Australia to embark upon the civil government of northern New Guinea and the late territory of Bismarck.

How does the Pacific of today differ from that of 1914? Not very greatly. The wide German sphere of influence in the west, both north and south of the equator, has been effaced completely. The territory has been divided amongst two—or should we say three?—of the Pacific Powers. And the German commercial mechanism has disintegrated, leaving the field to the operation of competitors who were rigidly excluded under the old German regime. Japan now becomes by the force of circumstances a Pacific Power, which she never was before. She is the very close neighbor of the United States by actually encircling her possessions at Guam; the very close neighbor of Great Britain by squatting at Jaluit, within 200 or 300 miles of the Crown Colony of Gilbert and Ellice; and uncomfortably close to both Australia and New Zealand by extending her actual frontiers to the equator.

From "The New Pacific," by Guy H. Scholefield, in the September Scribner's.

The Japanese Women Are Progressing Also.

Western Ideals Will Prevail

Japan's new woman is not overturning her screen, is not recklessly punching holes in the white-paper shoji. She recognizes that the effects of many generations of such nutriment as "Such is the stupidity of woman's character that it is incumbent on her in every particular to distrust herself and to obey her husband," must be counteracted to some degree before she can take her place in the world as a normal individual. She knows there is but one way to do this and that is by education on equal lines with man. Not co-education—that is a question scarcely discussed and decidedly not advocated. By all discerning women it is recognized that some generations of training are necessary before Japanese boys and girls can be thrown together in the elementary schools. And this training will have to begin in the home social life. No, Japan's new woman waves no red flag. She asks only the chance to show that mentality is not a masculine close corporation in Yamato. She is quite weary of studying text-books specially prepared for an inferior quality of intellect. Even generations of studying in "Greater Learning" that, "viewed from standards of man's nature, the foolishness of woman fails to understand her duties that lie before her very eyes," and "that the five worst maladies that afflict the feminine mind are: indocility, discontent, slander, jealousy, and silliness—the worst of them all and the parent of the other four is silliness," have not wholly convinced her that she could not master the text books that are prescribed for boys and men. She desires that the courses may differ but that the texts on the same subjects should be the same. She resents the similar female textbook pabulum. Fancy "a history suitable for girl's mentality."

From "Japan's New Woman," by Emma Sarepta Yule, in the September Scribner's.

They Got Their Money's Worth.

A Story Told by a Novelist Who Worked as a Waitress in an Atlantic City Hotel

At dinner I was stationed at a table of six covers. My guests, I soon learned, were the family of a multimillionaire—wife three small children, their French governess, and a trained nurse. For the first three meals I worked under the supervision of Anna, a waitress who had been in the Sea Foam for more than six months. One of her first instructions was:

"Don't pay no attention to her," indicating the millionaire's wife. "She'll work your head off and won't give you so much as a thank-you."

This family took their meals in two sections—the children with the governess and nurse, the mother alone. At the first dinner I served without the assistance of Anna the mistress of millions wrote her order as follows:

"Two portions of oysters on the half shell, two portions of olives, two portions of asparagus, two portions of the heart of lettuce without dressing two portions of fried oysters, eight portions of the heart of celery, six portions of radishes two portions of apples, two portions crystallized ginger, two cups of hot chocolate, two portions of crackers, two portions of cheese, two portions of squabs two portions of green peas, two portions of queen fritters, two portions of chocolate ice-cream, and two portions of cake."

She ordered me to bring it all in on the same tray, as she did not wish to be kept waiting. When one recalls the weight of hotel china and the custom of covering each dish with one size smaller, the physical impossibility of obeying this order will be understood. Following Anna's instructions, I "paid no attention" to the millionaire's wife. It required three trays as heavy as I could lift to get her dinner in to her.

From "Being a Waitress in a Boardwalk Hotel," by "A Novelist," in the September Scribner's.

At The Turn Of The Road

A sharp turn in the road, a skidding automobile, a crash.

The Boy was running with all his speed to the scene of the catastrophe.

At the bad turn with its "Go Slow" sign, The Boy paused and caught his breath. By the side of the wrecked machine he saw a man and woman moaning in pain. Hastening to them, he spoke words of comfort and promised speedy assistance. Then, before departing on his errand, he paused at a bubbling spring, filled his hat with cool water and gave the man and woman a refreshing drink.

In a moment The Boy was speeding across the pasture lot to a little red schoolhouse where he breathlessly told the teacher of the accident and then utrned to the First Aid kit on its shelf in the corner. With the box under his arm, he led the teacher and a group of the older boys to the spot where the man and woman were lying.

A badly cut head, a broken arm and painful bruises were the injuries discovered by the deft fingers of teh teacher who applied bandages and splints. Then with the help of the larger pupils he assisted the injured into a farmer"s automobile which had driven up while the rescue work was in progress.

The injured man by this time had revived sufficiently to express his tahnsk for the prompt aid which had been given him and his wife.

"How do you know so well what to do?" he asked.

"Our school belongs to the Junior American Red Cross," answered The Boy, "and we have supplied all the schools in our country with First Aid kits. We have been taught what to do in cases of accident."

"I do not know what we should have done without your help," said the woman to the teacher and pupils grouped by the side of the road, "and as soon as we recover, your school shall have some evidence of our appreciation."

A few days later several large boxes addressed to the Juniors of Hopewell School were deposited in the school yard and to The Boy was given teh honor of opening them and discovering to the pupils gathered about him a complete set of play gground equipment bearing a card reading, "From two grateful patients of the First Aid Class."

United States Public Health Service

Range of U. C. Public Health Service Work.

"Glad as the U. S. Public Health Service has been," says Surgeon General H. S. Cumming, "to do its part in the hospitalization and care of the ill and disabled soldiers with whom its officers had become so well acquainted while serving in the Army Hospitals in France and elsewhere, this duty did not constitute a part of the Public Health functions of the Service but was undertaken through patriotism and because the Service was the only Government agency that had an organization and hospital available when the need came. Later its assignment to this duty was made a matter of law.

"From March 3, 1919, when this law went into effect, to May 1921, when the hospitalization and care of nearly half of these patients was transferred to the War Risk Bureau, the number of patients formerly in the charge of the Service increased from 990 to 25,000, with indications of still further increase. From the first the number had increased much faster than the total capacity of the Government hospitals could be extended; and almost from the first the Service was compelled to place about two-thirds of its patients (10,500 on May 1, 1921) in private hospitals under contract.

"Responsibility for these 10,500 patients has already been restored to the War Risk Bureau, and, if bills pending before Congress become law, the hospitalization of the patients cared for in Government hospitals as well as in "contract" hospitals will rest with the War Risk; and the public Health Service will merely render hospital care to those whom the War Risk assigns to it.

"This will enable the Service to turn a much larger share of its energies to its traditional duty of protecting the country against the importation of foreign disease; conducting scientific research into important problems involving the cause, treatment, and cure of preventable or communicable disease; investigating the diseases to which working-men are subject by reason of their emploment; ooperating with the States in the control of epidemics, in rural hygiene, child hygiene, venereal disase and so on.

"The Marine Hospital Service, which developed into the Public Health Service, was created in July, 1798, to furnish medical care to sick and disabled American merchant seamen. Hospitals were built at the principal seaports and later on some of the larger rivers and the Great Lakes.

"The officers of the Service at the coast hospitals were naturally the first to come into contact with such diseases as cholera, yellow fever, and small-pox when imported from aboard and were able to render aid to the State authorities in enforcing quarantine measures. Later, the States, one by one, turned over their quarantine stations to the Service, New York being the last to fall into line.

"In March, 1890, Congress authorized the Public Health Service to cooperate with State and local health agencies in preventing the interstate spread of disease. The cooperation thus initiated has been extended to many other forms of health work and has become a settled policy. Its workings have been exceedingly beneficent, for they have brought the experience gained from the whole country to bear on each particular problem in each particular place. They have also incited the different States to appropriate money for their own health needs in order to obtain Government leadership and other Government assistance. On an average the country gets about $5 worth of effective health work for every dollar the Government expnds in this way.

"Assistance in the control of yellow fever, small pox, and other communicable disease led directly to research into their causes and to educational work to end them by informing the country of what had been discovered and how to make use of it. For the research work Congress established in U. S. Public Health Service which 1902 the Hygienic Laboratory of the rapidly expanded until today it is one of the foremost research institutions of its kind in the world. The results of its studies in checking disease, reducing suffering, and lengthening human life are incalculable.

"In 1912 the Service was authorized to investigate the diseases of man," and under the authority thus conferred it has made some very important contributions to the control of disease. To mention only a few, the studies of Anderson and Goldberger on measles showed that the disease was infective during the first three days only, thus rendering unnecessary the long periods of quarantine that were formerly in vogue; the extensive investigations of Stiles on the prevalence and on life history of hookworm led to effective measures for the control of this wide-spread cause of physical in-efficiency; the work of Lumsden in rural sanitation resulted in simple and effective methods for the safe disposal of human excreta and in the extensive adoption of modern methods in rural public health administration; the many sided studied dealing the malaria have been of inestimable service in devising practicable control measures for this courage of the Southern States; the discovery of the identity of "Brills disease" with typhus fever by Goldberger, and the working out of effective methods for controlling the disease by delousing has provided a barrier to the introduction of this pestilence into the United States, the painstaking investigations by Goldberger regarding pellagra have disposed of the various theories previously advanced as to the cause of this disease and have definitely placed pellagra in the class of diseases arising from deficiency in the diet, thus furnishing the means of preventing and treating this important malady; the work of the Service in the field of industrial hygiene has thrown much light on hitherto obscure factors in the causation of certain industrial fatigue, and other equally important problems; the investigations made by the Service in the field of mental hygiene have helped in dealing with the control of venereal diseases, with the problem of juvenile delinquency, and with feeble mindedness; the studies of the health of school children and the sanitation of rural schools have done much to improve conditions for this important part of our growing citizenship; the careful statistical investigations of sickness among the working classes have furnished valuable basic information for devising plans for dealing with this vast problem. Although the Public Health Service has contributed in many different ways to the successful carrying out of measures for the prevention and control of disease and the promotion of public health.

"Recently," added the Surgeon General, "the Service has sent its surgeons to help in flood work at Pueblo in typhus eradication among Indians in southwest; in typhoid fever work at Louisville; in tick fever protection in Montana; in tuberculosis and child hygiene in Utah; and in making the national parks safe and sanitary for travellers. Latest of all it has launched a campaign against pellagra, which has given indications of becoming dangerous, owing to the economic depression among farmers and especially among the tenant cotton growers of the South, who have been rendered practically penniless by the condition of the cotton market andare forced to live on salt pork, combread, and molasses, which, when eaten exclusively for a few months are almost certain to cause pellagra.

AID FOR THE EX-SOLDIER

Richmond, Va., August 24, 1921.

Miss Helen N. Cummings,
Alexandria, Va.

My dear Miss Cummings:

Every member of the Virginia War History Commission has an opportunity to render valuable service to our ex-service men throughout the State. The National Government is trying to reach out to the disabled veterans in every city and county of the Union and the government agents are now busy with this task in Virginia and have asked our help.

The Veterans Bureau, Arlington Building, Washington, D. C., has established temporary offices in the Chamber of Commerce, Room 804, this city. The work in this State is under the direction of Capt. Branch Johnson of Richmond and Mr. R. S. Bugg of Washington.

What these gentlemen desire specifically is the name and address of every ex-soldier who has any reason for making a claim for compensation, treatment or training. Every means of publicity is being used to induce these men to come forward at this time with their claims, as the government thinks that in many cases just claims may be overlooked unless a specific invitation is extended to each disabled veteran. The Virginia War History Commission wants to help in this land able work.

May I ask you then to send to us promptly at the central office, Room 9, State Capitol, Richmond the names and addresses of any men in your city who have sustained injury in the service of the government and who may be entitled to compensation, treatment or training at the hands of the government? It will not be necessary for you to specify the nature of the injury. I am enclosing a blank for your convenience in giving us the information.

As the lists coming to the office will be kept in a card-index file, you need have no fear of duplication. Even if a name comes from half a dozen different sources no harm will be done.

The Veterans' Bureau is sending its official "squad" of experts to ten points in Virginia. As soon as we receive the names of these government beneficiaries, we shall turn them over to the officers of the Veterans' Bureau who will, in turn inform each man of the time and place when he may get in touch with these experts. Thus, you will see that your prompt attention to this matter will be of inestimable service to the war veterans of your community and State.

Sincerely yours,
ARTHUR KYLE DAVIS,
Chairman.

NERVOUS FAINTING SPELLS

Mrs. Werner Tells How They Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Camden, N. J.—"Before my baby was born I was run down and weak, had pains in my back and stomach, was very nervous and would have fainting spells. I certainly suffered awfully with those nervous fainting spells. I did not know anyone at times and used to scream. A doctor treated me for the spells but did not seem to do much good. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills before so I began taking them again. I soon felt a change and could do my work without pain and was cured of those nervous spells. Now I have a nice fat baby girl and had an easy time at birth, thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. WILLIAM C. WERNER, 1216 Van Hook St., Camden, N. J.

When a wife finds her energies are flagging, she is weak, nervous, suffers from backache, the "blues" she should build her system up at once by taking that standard woman's medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as did Mrs. Werner.

If there is anything about your condition you do not understand write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., in regard to your health.

Hit or Miss Gasoline Makes a Motor Hit or Miss

THE problem of obtaining uniform quality is one of the difficulties that the successful gasoline producer has had to solve. The matter of varying quality is one of the greatest annoyances to the gasoline user.

It was easy to get a standard product when practically all the gasoline came from one or two types of crude petroleum. Comparatively little gasoline was used then. Today, the demand is so great that all parts of the globe have been explored for petroleum, which accounts for the great range of "crudes" on the market.

Gasoline must be uniform not only in one or two or three respects, but in every way that affects motor operation. Almost every property of the gasoline you use influences in some way the performance of your motor.

The Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) has never been content to have "Standard" Motor Gasoline exceptionally good in any one respect to the detriment of other properties.

The ideal would be to have every drop of gasoline as uniform in all qualities as the chemicals and drugs which your pharmacist uses in a prescription. As a result of the co-operation of our Development and Manufacturing Departments, "Standard" Motor Gasoline is positively the best balanced and the highest in quality that you can buy. It is the same whether you get it in one corner of the state or another.
